Figaro and Susana are going to be married. But before they take their vows, there are a few wrinkles to iron out... such as a master with a roving eye, a mistress with a broken heart and a matron with a prior claim. Only Mozart can take one character, and add another, and another, and another, cracking jokes, making love, plotting revenge, all at once, all heart-stoppingly entwined in song. Could this be the perfect opera? Neil Armfield's luscious production revels in the subversive wit and sexual tension of the libretto, edged on by some startlingly beautiful music.

Don't miss Peter Coleman-Wright and Teddy Tahu Rhodes as they go head to head.
